WALNUT GROVE MOUND.

The Work of Demolition Goes on with a Great Deal of Care.

INTERESTING RELICS ARE FOUND

Every Day During the Progress of the Work—An Elk's Antlers Among the Articles Taken from the Mound. An Antique Pipe to Which the Odor of Tobacco Still Clings.

The number of persons who visited the mound at Walnut Grove, at Martin's Ferry, yesterday, is variously estimated at from 1,500 to 3,000. No work was done yesterday. Many men and boys spent a part of the afternoon looking for relics.

C. C. Cochran found and elk's antlers in the big mound on Saturday, measuring fully seven feet in length and five and a half inches in diameter at the base. The work of removing them was very tedious and it was absolutely impossible to get them out intact. They were broken in many pieces and are in a remarkably good state of preservation for the time they have been in the mound. The finding of these caused a great deal of talk; everybody was anxious to see them, and several persons wanted to buy them. The finding of the photograph of the high mogul of the mound-builders would not have created more surprise than these antlers. The elk is very rare in Europe and is no longer found in parts of North America where they were once common. In olden times they extended as far south as the Ohio river. They are sometimes seen on the shores of the Arctic ocean. When full grown an elk sometimes weighs 1,200 pounds. The body is round and short. The head, which is narrow, is about two feet long. A single antler has been known to weigh sixty pounds. The hair breaks when bent. Its common gait is a shambling trot. The color of the elk is brownish black, darker in winter than summer. When compelled to eat grass they must go down on their knees to reach it. Their proper food consists of the branches and foliage of shrubs and trees. They are very timid and inoffensive, except during the rutting season. The flesh is a good kind of venison and the nose and tongue are reckoned delicacies.

It seems that the people in ancient times smoked pipes, and possibly cigarettes, judging from the appearance and odor of one relic found in the big mound. About one third of the way down from the summit was found a real pipe and it was a strong one. The statement that it was 'strong' may be doubted, but the INTELLIGENCER man smelled it, and discovered the fact that it was actually odoriferous, and so much so that the smelling feature was discovered when the pipe was handed to him, and when a foot from his nose. The attention of the finder was called to this fact, and on smelling it himself he said:

"Sure enough! Well, that beats anything I ever heard of."

The finder supposed it was a pipe just after he picked it up, and on examining it closely saw tobacco in the old time smoking article, or something that had been smoked. The pipe, which was broken in two, measured 2 1/2 inches in length and two thirds of an inch in diameter in the inner circle, and a little over an inch on the outside. The pipe is round and has a round hole in the bottom of it, the hole measuring fully a fourth of an inch. The ancient pipe was made out of stone or clay and burned very hard. It is turned at the bottom and the whole of the interior is as smooth as glass.

Contractor Cochran will put a large force of men at work to-day in removing the mound. With the increased force and favorable weather he expects to finish the job by the middle of April. Less than one-fourth of the mound was hauled away in the five and a half days worked last week. Mr. Cochran has been exceedingly careful in the work, so that the relics would not be destroyed and pass into the carts unnoticed. There is nothing in the removal for Cochran except the money he will get from Martin's Ferry for dirt, which is being used for filling North Fifth street, preparatory to paving it with fire brick; the big mound is not being removed for the sake of science; all the relics are to go to Mr. O. R. Wood, the owner of the ground.

The Water Board.

There is some talk of a special meeting of council to approve the bonds of the water works' trustees. There is a good deal of work to be done, which will suffer from delay, and the board is anxious to get at it. The Register had an item yesterday to the effect that Mr. J. K. Hall, chairman of the county republican committee, is a candidate for the secretaryship of one of the city boards. Such a foolish report could not originate outside of the fertilized brain of a Register man. Mr. Hall is not a candidate for any secretaryship or clerkship, will not be one, and has never been supposed to be a possible candidate by anybody who knew anything about it.

Kempe Invited to Washington.

Col. Jacob Kempe is in receipt of two letters and a telegram asking him if he will come to Washington and deliver his new lecture. Replying to the question of the reporter, will you go? The colonel said: "Hardly this spring, as I can make twice the amount of money by waiting until the extra session of Congress this fall. The expenses are so heavy that a lecturer of my style has to charge one dollar admission. Most of the office-holders are afraid to spend their dollars, for they don't know when they are going out, and the office-seeker, if he has a dollar left at this stage of the game, has to hug it very tight, for he don't know when he is going to get in. The administration will be more settled in the next six months. My lecture there now would be salt in the wounds of many of my friends, who from a similar experience of my own years ago, have my profound sympathy."

The Arions To-Night.

The annual Easter Monday concert which takes place to-night at Arion hall, will be one of the most elaborate and enjoyable occasions yet given under the auspices of the Arion singing society. The Opera House orchestra and some of the best local talent will make the affair an artistic success.

Ed Boeking, Jr., Dead.

The announcement in another part of this morning's paper of the death of Ed Boeking, Jr., which occurred at Philadelphia yesterday, will come as a severe shock to his numerous friends. It was known that he was gravely ill, but no immediate serious outcome was looked for. His father some time ago sent Dr. Cushing on to care for him, and Saturday he telegraphed that Ed was seriously ill. He was just past thirty, and was perfecting himself in the science of pharmacy at a Philadelphia college. His father has the heartfelt sympathy of all his friends in his peculiarly sad bereavement. The remains will be brought home for interment.

BOCKING—In Philadelphia, Sunday, April 2, 1893, EDWARD F. BOCKING, aged 30 years and 5 months.

Funeral notice hereafter.

The highest place, among all blood-medicines, belongs to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. See if you don't think so when you consider how it's sold to you. It's guaranteed—and no other medicine of the kind is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. Wouldn't every medicine make the same terms if it could do as much good? But the "Discovery" acts differently, just as it's sold differently. It's not like the saw-sparilla, which claim to do good in March, April, and May. All the year round, with equal benefit, it cleanses, purifies and invigorates the whole system. All Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. For Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Gout or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, it's a remedy that nothing can equal. It's the cheapest one, too. With this, you pay only for the good you get. Refuse worthless substitutes.
